Miami University (Ohio)

Lewis B. Mayhew is currently Professor of Education at Stanford University and one of this country's most well known scholars of higher education. From 1947 to 1959, Dr. Mayhew taught social science at Michigan State University moving from instructor to full professor. While at Michigan State he was Assistant Director of the Office of Evaluation Services. During World War II, Dr. Mayhew achieved the rank of Major in the U.S. Army Adjutant General's Department. In 1960 he moved to the University of South Florida where he served as a professor of social science and Director of Institutional Analysis and Planning until 1962 when he began his tenure at Stanford University. Dr. Mayhew was Assistant Director of the Cooperative Study of Evaluation of General Education sponsored by the American Council on Education. He held a similar position as Director of the North Central Association Study on Liberal Arts Education. He is former Director, ERIC Clearinghouse on Information Resources and Director of Institutional Research at Stephens College in Columbia, Missouri. He is past President of the American Association for Higher Education (1967-68) and member of many national commissions and councils including the Commission on Future, College Entrance Examination Board and the Advisory Council on Graduate Education, U. S. Office of Education. He is a long-time member of the Advisory Board of the JOURNAL OF HIGHER EDUCATION. Since 1974 Dr. Mayhew has been a member of the Board of Scholars, Higher Education Research Institute. He is a member of Phi Delta Kappa, Phi Alpha Theta, and Zeta Psi. In 1975, he was selected as one of the "top 40 leaders" in American higher education (see CHANGE, February 1975, p. 30). Professor Mayhew's unique background in higher education research makes this bibliography especially useful to those attempting to establish trends in scholarship over the past few decades.
